The Angels Cried

| D                              | $\mathbf{A}$           | Bm                 | $\mathbf{A}$      | G /                  |
|--------------------------------|------------------------|--------------------|-------------------|----------------------|
| They came from                 | near, they came        | from far, follow   | ing a distant sta | r, to where He lay.  |
| D                              | $\mathbf{A}$           | Bm                 | $\mathbf{A}$      | $\mathbf{G}$         |
| Not being sure of              | what it meant, l       | But knowing it w   | vas heaven sent,  | they made their way. |
| Em                             | /                      |                    |                   |                      |
| And the creatures              | s gathered 'round      | l .         |                   |                      |
| $\mathbf{G}$                   | /                      | D C G /     |                   |                      |
| And didn't make                | a sound. And th        | e angels cried.    |                   |                      |
| _                              |                        | _                  |                   | ~ .                  |
| D                              | A               | Bm                 | A          | $\mathbf{G}$ /       |
| _ ~                            |                        | ne, the reason G   | od nad sent his   | son, from up above.  |
| D It filled their been         | A                      |                    |                   |                      |
| It filled their hear Bm | $\mathbf{A}$           | $\mathbf{G}$       | 1                 |                      |
| And knowing of                 |                        |                    |                   |                      |
| Em                             | /                      | ne tears or love.  |                   |                      |
| And the creatures              | s gathered 'round      | l.          |                   |                      |
| G                              | /                      | DCG                | /                 |                      |
| And didn't make                | a sound. And th        | e angels cried.    |                   |                      |
|                                |                        | C                  |                   |                      |
| D                              | $\mathbf{A}$           |                    |                   |                      |
| I've often though              | t about that nigh      | t,                 |                   |                      |
| Bm                             | $\mathbf{A}$           | G                  | /                 |                      |
| And wondered if                | they realized that     | at star so bright, |                   |                      |
| D A                            |                        |                    |                   |                      |
| Was sent to tell a             |                        |                    | ,                 |                      |
| Bm CC 1                        | A               | $\mathbf{G}$       | /                 |                      |
| The son of God v               | vould soon becom       | me, the son of m   | an.               |                      |
| Em                             | /a gothorod 'round | 1                  |                   |                      |
| And the creatures G     | s gamereu round        | D C G /            |                   |                      |
| And didn't make                | a sound And the        |                    |                   |                      |
| D C                            |                        | C G /              |                   |                      |
| And the angels cr              |                        |                    |                   |                      |